

Who are we?

The Cal Poly Disc Golf Club is a new, small club of members that represent the California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo. The club offers a community of disc golfers at the college who are passionate about disc golf, competing, and mostly getting outdoors to enjoy the game together.

What do we do?

The Cal Poly Disc Golf Club competes against other California Universities in monthly. They host events at local courses and travel to cities along the coast participating in other college events. Competitors at Cal Poly include similar groups like the mens and women's ultimate frisbee teams.

*look at that local course!
Sinsheimer is always a beauty*

What about team bonding?

Meeting up at the local courses like

- Sinsheimer
- Lagoon Lake
- Dairy Creek

are a weekly staple for CPDG members. We put on BBQs, backyard campfires, and street disc golf at the socials. Not to mention FREE PIZZA.

Think you could be a good fit?

There are many local disc golf courses and a built-in community that is always out enjoying the game. Many students at Cal Poly are involved in activities and groups outside of school and looking for more connections with other students. The disc golf club attracts many people looking for casual and low commitment outdoor activities that you can make some great friends at. Disc golf is a great sport because people are familiar with similar sports like frisbee so it is a very inviting sport to start, especially for first-timers. The club is laid back, fun, and exactly what you want to make it.
